The property

Dating from around the early 17th century, Higher Cotley is a traditional cob built thatched Devon longhouse and retains plenty of original features such as exposed oak beams, metal and leaded casement windows with original glass, an internal leaded glazed screen and impressive fireplaces, seamlessly blended (through recent sympathetic refurbishment) with a professionally designed lighting plan, high end fixtures and fittings and elegant comfortable decoration suitable for modern life.

Once through the wide oak front door the accommodation flows from a welcoming hallway (which would have originally been a 'cross passage') with internal glazed double door partition and storage, into the triple aspect double level sitting/dining/play room, with original granite inglenook fireplace and open fire with pumice lined chimney, offering a characterful and versatile family space. An external door opens onto a secondary rear terrace. Internal steps lead through to the light filled kitchen/breakfast room which overlooks the sweeping lawns and has an oil fired Aga, excellent storage, integrated appliances and space for a family dining table. Steps descend from the kitchen, leading past the utility area and downstairs shower room and the back door to the rear terrace and gardens, and onwards down into a magnificent and versatile triple aspect reception space with a wooden floor which enjoys a wealth of natural light and benefits from high and part vaulted ceilings and an external glazed door to the front of the house. A hidden staircase leads back up to a family room/snug/home office which has a front aspect window seat, a fireplace with 'bolection' stone fire surround and slate hearth and expansive built in sofa seating and shelving. This also adjoins the main hall.

Upstairs there are four well-appointed bedrooms including a very large double aspect east/south facing room (which could be converted into two bedrooms with the right permissions) and a recently refurbished principal suite with contemporary en suite shower room. The family bathroom features a double marble topped vanity, a freestanding roll top cast iron bath, a separate shower and engineered oak flooring. The house has benefited recently from a newly installed cast iron radiator heating system throughout the main reception rooms and upstairs, a large new hot water cylinder, rewiring, and underfloor heating to both bathrooms

Outside

The property is set back from the lane in complete privacy and benefits from two separate driveways. The main drive is sited above the house and approaches the property through granite pillars and opens onto a gravelled driveway with ample parking for multiple cars. Here there are two detached outbuildings, a thatched building currently used as a garden office and a double garage with power and water. Paved stone steps lead down past the thatched well to the front of the property, where the second drive with double wooden gates is found, with further ample gravelled parking directly outside the front of the house. A further outbuilding featuring original cob walls offers a large greenhouse, external storerooms, a timber framed log store with a south facing solar panel array to one side, and a large timber framed workshop, with power and light, built by hand by a local craftsman, to the other. The well maintained wraparound gardens enjoy far reaching views across the surrounding valley and countryside, sloping lawns and numerous peaceful terraced areas for seating and entertaining. Mature specimen trees and established hedging offer complete privacy and seclusion. Established and refurbished cottage style and 'Mediterranean' borders feature extensive recent traditional dry stone walling built by hand using local granite. Beyond the garden and fenced pond lies a grassy sloped fenced paddock of 1.7 acres which is bordered by ancient private woodland belonging to a local country estate.
