The property

Holme Hall is a sprawling Grade II* country house, set in a sought-after position on the edge of the village of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor and dates back to around 1720 and was designed by William Wakefield for Lord Langdale, and features 33,592 square feet of accommodation.

Formerly used as a Sue Ryder care home, the property offers significant potential to be converted into a boutique hotel or a destination venue for conferencing or weddings, with its delightful chapel.

The house features various reception rooms with grand original details, including high ceilings, elegant cornicing and plasterwork and large sash windows welcoming plenty of natural light. There are also extensive offices, treatment rooms, stores and meeting rooms, which make the space ideal for conversion into conferencing facilities. There are two kitchens, with commercial fittings and equipment that can serve substantial numbers of guests. The jewel in the crown of the property is the stunning chapel, which is divided into two discreet areas, one of which has a more utilitarian feel, with its exposed timber eaves, while the other section has more ornate elegant styling and attractive detailing.

There are 41 bedrooms in the main house, with the majority of the rooms all being en suite, while there are several other bathrooms, shower rooms and WCs dotted around the building.

Additionally, the property includes an annexe with two self-contained apartments, which is ideal for use as a residence for staff or property managers. The ground-floor apartment has a reception room, a kitchen and three double bedrooms, all of which are en suite. On the first floor, a second apartment offers a comfortable sitting room, a fully equipped kitchen, three bedrooms, a dressing room and two shower rooms.

Outside

The property is set within magnificent gardens and grounds of approximately 9.68 acres, which include beautifully maintained lawns, mature trees and a wealth of established hedgerows and shrubs. There is also a large south-facing patio offering views across the gardens and providing the ideal setting for al fresco dining. There is good access to the property for residents, guests and suppliers, with the driveway leading to the house and its large parking area at the rear. Outbuildings include a workshop, which provides garaging and extensive storage space, as well as a gardener's room.

Location

Holme Hall is in the village of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor in the East Riding of Yorkshire, a well-connected and characterful rural setting.
